

SENATE MAPS OUT LEGISLATIVE PLAN

Will Dispose of Free Sugar
Clause of Underwood Tariff Act Tuesday.

ARMY MEASURE SLATED
FOR FINAL VOTE APRIL 18

Debate Limited to Ten-Minute
Speeches, Beginning Friday—Nitrate Plant Project Discussed.

The Senate yesterday afternoon agreed to vote on the army bill and all amendments thereto Tuesday, April 18, and to limit debate, beginning next Friday afternoon, to ten-minute speeches, each senator to speak only once on each amendment and on the bill itself.

In connection with this agreement the Senate also determined by unanimous consent to take up the bill repealing the free sugar clause of the Underwood tariff law tomorrow and to vote on that measure Tuesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. Senator Simmons, chairman of the finance committee, explained the necessity for disposing of this bill as soon as possible, owing to the fact that unless Congress took action sugar would go on the free list May 1.

Army Bill Causes Speculation.

There is still considerable speculation over the final form of the army bill when it passes the Senate. Senators on both the democratic and republican sides of the chamber have expressed a desire to see the peace strength of the regular army increased over the 180,000 mark provided in the Senate bill, some advocating as great a force as 300,000. A struggle over the National Guard and volunteer army features of the bill is also looked for before the final vote is taken. Some of the senators believe that the heavy appropriations made for the payment of National Guard officers and men from the federal Treasury should be stricken from the bill. Others are strongly opposed to the retention of the volunteer army.

Nitrate Plant Project Debated.

Debate in the Senate yesterday was confined to the government nitrate plant project, Senator Kenyon of Iowa attacking the amendment offered by Senator Underwood of Alabama, which he insisted might as well be framed so as to direct specifically that a plant at Muscle Shoals, Ala., be established. He argued in favor of a government owned and operated plant, as provided in the amendment offered by Senator Smith of South Carolina.

Senator Lewis of Illinois took the Senate to task for the time it was devoting to consideration of the bill.

"The conduct of the Senate," he said, "manifests a disposition to avoid responsibility. We should either surround the country with force or we should announce to the country that force is not needed and direct our attention to the discussion of legislation for the advancement of the nation's civil life.

Declaring the diplomatic situation was precarious and that the Mexican problem "multiplied embarrassment," Senator Lewis added: "We cannot utter a doctrine and ignore its execution."

Disclaimer by Senators.

The reference to Mexico drew from Senator Chamberlain and Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, statements that the army reorganization bill had no connection with the situation beyond the border.

"I would have the people in Mexico understand," said Senator Stone, "that the movement to increase the power of the United States would have been just as great even if Mexico were one wide field of peace and prosperity."
